

Breakfast Event: Litigation Roundtable - How to formulate an effective litigation strategy

Do you find that your business formulates its approach to employment disputes in the moment?

In our experience, organisations can often manage litigation more effectively and successfully if a considered strategy is formulated at the outset of a case and then kept under review as the litigation develops.

In this roundtable GQ|Littler's litigation experts will lead a practical discussion over breakfast. They will explore the different factors which should feed into your litigation strategy and how that can evolve along the litigation journey, together with real-life experiences shared on a Chatham House basis.

The GQ|Littler Litigation Roundtable has been created to hold regular free breakfast events where senior HR professionals and In-house Counsel come together to learn more about key litigation issues, meet other professionals and share experiences.
